

JURY GIVES KJELLBERG
$6,000 ALLEGED DAMAGES

Case That Had Been on Trial Since Last Monday Brought to Close Saturday Noon

After being out for twenty-four hours in the district court that since last Tuesday has been hearing the Kjellberg case, at noon Saturday reported a verdict of $6,000 for the plaintiff, J. E. Kjellberg against the Corpus Christi Street and Interurban Railway Company.

Kjellberg, alleging that he had been injured by being struck by a car of the defendant company, this occurring during January 1913, had asked for $18,342 for alleged damages. Attorneys for the defendants following the verdict of Saturday filed with Judge Graham a motion for a new trial.

Since the accident the street railway company has been sold and in reality the defendants in the Kjellberg case are Earl and V. H. Meeks. The jurors who tried the case were: R. E. Harrold, J. W. Gaines, Ed Pearce, O. L. Thoden, A. Bartholomew, A. L. Astley, E. L. Bertram, E. O. Smith, William H. Bain, C. B. Morrison and J. P. Rader.

BONDED WAREHOUSE TO BE SOON AT BEEVILLE

BEEVILLE, July 24.—The stockholders of the Farmers’ Warehouse Company in the office of the Young Men’s Progressive League last evening and discussed with a representative of the State Warehouse Department the proposition of converting the present warehouse into a bonded institution complying with the State Warehouse Law. It was unanimously decided to make the change.

The capital stock of the company will be increased to $12,000 and additional warehouses will be built soon which is now being hastened. It is estimated that this crop will be about 150 cars for the country. The price is ranging from $60 to $80 per ton, some or two cars have been shipped. New oil buyers from the north and east are here. The local cream factory contains about 25 cars and the bid given will be for sale to outside interests.

Men in the employ of the Allen supplied the thief and led the officers to his home where the ring and money concealed in a trunk was pointed out to the officers.

Skin taken from the arms of a daughter was yesterday grafted on the body of Miss M. Terrell, an aged woman, who several weeks ago was injured when struck by a streetcar. Her doctor, receiving no answer from Miss Terrell, is getting along splendidly and expects rapid and early recovery now from amputation.

Members of the Rotary Club are urged to forward to Secretary H. H. Edwards just as early as possible photos of themselves for publication in the state center wheel, which probably go to press during the latter part of the present week. The center in addition to containing photos of the members will also give the historical classification with home and business addresses and phone numbers of the eighty members.

At the Sunday School of the First Presbyterian Church this morning a Memorial tablet in memory of Judge H. K. Scott will be presented to the Sunday school and Church by Mrs. Scott and Mrs. W. E. Pope.

A number of Nueces county farmers yesterday visited Camp Brown, education, those valley residents of the day to observe the workings of the tall tractor that has been recently purchased and placed on the plantation by the owners H. S. and L. S. Gedney. The tractor is a eight cylinder farm of the work of a team of horses or mules.

FRANK G. MENKE GIVES SOME FACTS IN THE CAREER OF EBBETS' BROOK-LYNERS

He Gives the Facts in Hanus Wagner's Batting Career—Only Twice Has He Polled More Than 200 Hits.

By Frank G. Menke

NEW YORK, July 24.—It may be surprising to learn that Hanus Wagner and his wife would be racing toward the end of the season with as many wins as the Brooklyn club, but it is true.

It is also surprising to learn that the Dodger pitchers will be racing toward the end of the season with as many wins as the Brooklyn club.

Charles G. Conacher, engaged in presenting National League baseball in the style of Brooklyn, experienced a very lean year in 1914 and there was the prediction that 1915 would be even worse. Still the Dodgers have surprised everybody—themselves mostly—by playing wonderful baseball and keeping within striking distance of first place almost since the season began.

And the end isn’t yet—unless the embattled skipper Hanus—“My boys are just hitting their stride, they’ll win the pennant but I do not know, I don’t want to predict that they’ll win the pennant but I do want to say that we’ve got a little fight park for staying world series combat.”

When a certain New Yorker learned that Howard Drew, his much vaunted, had harvested his first job as a bus man during our winter on the Pacific Coast, he said:

“Good! I hope your team wins real well and we will see you back from the Fall.”

“Good! Good,” added a spectator.

With the fellow who worked as a waiter at the bus stop waiting to meet the coach of a placed before starting.

One of the strongest features of Hanus’ Wagner’s batting career is that only twice, over a 15-year stretch has he polled as high as 286 hits per season. In 1908 and again in 1912 he had 281 hits.

Hanis assumed that, however, Wagner had bettered his best ever, a 15-year record and announced a grand batting average of .341 for all those 15 years, but had often made more than one hit per game, but the records show to the contrary.

At first, the surprising news caused the industry worried about Drew Alexander, the pitching wonder of the Indians.

Alexander threw such a spotty ball that evidently it will not hurt him next year. Alexander lasted only ten games last year if he is at all fit, his arm improved in a 1-3, the way that Alexander does.

However, Alexander seems to be getting better, showed by his recent 10-1 win. Alexander beat out his regular baseball with a few spills and fires more than he has ever thrown a bather ball. If such a victory as this beat the Alexander wing it would mean that Abu’s wing should have started somewhere about 1-4, says Abu.

Instead of starting right away, Alexander won seven games and although this year may cost him the speed of the Pacific, his career was so great as it is now and even in his wretched shape, may be good enough every third day and not feel the strain.

With a good lot of letters were recently that the public demand was of digesting baseball remarks come from all sides, but the climax comes one day when a high class dress enters the track wearing a load of uncut and roughly unknotted them in front of the ladies.

The state class officials railed up to him and asked the what and wherefore of his action.

Flying Fairy, once the Queen of the Fairies, retired by her own, or Capt. E. H. Cosslett. The wonderful Flying Fairy has seen her best days early in her career she was able to weight up to 130 pounds and beat some of the best ladies in the game. But the old speed is gone.

Just a short time ago after suffering numerous defeats by some fast stock horses, Flying Fairy was sent against an ordinary lot of animals and asked to carry only 100 pounds. And Flying Fairy was beaten.

That defeat has decided me upon the retirement of Flying Fairy, said Captain.
